COOLIDGE IN FINAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

PAINTS AMERICA FULLY PEACEFUL AND PROSPEROUS

HINTS TO LEGISLATORS, HOWEVER, THAT VETO AWAITS NEW APPROPRIATIONS

SUCH PROPOSALS FOR IMMEDIATE OUTLAYS WOULD LEAD TO JUNE DEFICIT

By ROBERT MOOREFIELD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Dec. 4. — President Coolidge sent to congress today his final "annual message," a document painting America as fully peaceful and prosperous, but hinting to legislators that a veto awaits any new appropriations for immediate outlays. Such appropriations, he said, would lead to the "unthinkable" result of a June 1929 deficit.

Even a revolving fund in any farm relief legislation would have to be provided for by loans or otherwise, Mr. Coolidge advised, since the treasury would have no moneys available to create the fund.

At home, Mr. Coolidge said, "There is tranquility and contentment—and the highest record of years of prosperity," while abroad, "there is peace" and the "good will which comes from mutual understanding."

After warning the congress and the nation that America can "afford to walk humbly" and avoid becoming selfish and degenerate under the flood of prosperity, the president outlined a legislative program for the short session, some of which left legislators in doubt as to their own course of action.

He favored a farm relief bill with a revolving fund in it, but lacking the equalization fee proposal which he has hitherto found objectionable. He advocated passage of the 15 cruiser bill now pending in the senate, but suggested that the time clause for starting building before 1931 should be removed. Some saw in this an attempt to have merely a "paper" navy—one which need not be built if the 1931 arms limitation session under the Washington treaty comes to a new limitation arrangement.

He favored ratification of the Kellogg anti-war pact which he praised highly.

Further he was for passage of Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals bills, but with qualifications, which would prevent any extensive government entry into the private electrical power field.

HIGHLIGHTS OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S MESSAGE

(By United Press)
STATE OF THE NATION
"No congress ever assembled, on surveying the state of the Union has met with a more pleasing prospect than that which appears at the present time."

ECONOMY
"It is necessary during the present session to refrain from new appropriations for immediate outlay, or if such are absolutely required to provide for them by new revenue; otherwise we shall reach the end of the year with the unthinkable result of an unbalanced budget."

NATIONAL DEFENSE
"Our army could not be much reduced, but does not need to be increased. Our navy, according to generally accepted standards, is deficient in cruisers. The bill before the senate with the elimination of the time clause should be passed."

ANTI-WAR TREATY
"It is the most solemn declaration against war, the most positive adherence to peace, that is possible for sovereign nations to make."

FARM RELIEF
"The government should aid in promoting orderly marketing and in handling surpluses clearly due to weather and sensational conditions. "As a beginning there should be created a federal farm board empowered to advise producers' associations in establishing central agencies or stabilization corporations, to seek more economical means of merchandising, and to aid the producer in securing returns according to the quality of his product."

BOULDER DAM
"I feel warranted in recommending a measure which will protect the rights of the states, discharge the necessary government functions, and leave the electrical field to private enterprise."

DEATH TOLL IN CHILEAN QUAKE NEARS 275 TOTAL

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 4. —(U.P.)—The death toll in the earthquake in Talca and Constitucion last week end mounted to an unofficial total of 275 today. Relief was rushed to the stricken areas and communications were being restored rapidly.
In Talca and Constitucion health authorities found the greatest dangers existant in sanitary conditions. Common graves were dug for the bodies of the dead. Torrential rains fell on Talca and the surrounding sections yesterday and suffering was intense among the homeless who covered in hastily erected shelters. Slight shocks were reported felt in some sections yesterday.

STIPULATION OF THREE YEARS OF BIRTH CONTROL

IMPOSED UPON YOUNG COUPLE IN CLEVELAND BY JUDGE

DECISION IS UNIQUE IN AMERICAN COURT AN-

Cleveland, O., Dec. 4. —(U.P.)—A stipulation of three years of birth control was imposed upon Otto Kourim and his wife, who applied for divorce before Common Pleas Judge Harrison W. Ewing today. The decision is under unique American court annals.

"I shall not allow you to impose more children upon yourselves or upon society," Judge Ewing told the couple. "I therefore refuse the divorce and impose upon you three years of birth control."

The Kourims have three children. "Three children in three years should not be allowed," the judge added.

The husband's salary is $24 weekly. The Kourims eloped and were married Nov. 6, 1923. Kourim then was 22; his wife, 17.

"The most difficult problem that can be presented to a court," the judge said, "is that in which there are children involved. They are the most important principals in the case."

"When this couple ran away at their age it was a gay adventure. Both were ignorant of matrimonial problems and child care."

"When the first child was one year old some court could have given them a lesson in birth control at that time. They were before juvenile court at that time. It was a shame they were not given lessons."

"It was evident that the woman could not raise more than one child successfully. The couple needed two lessons—a high school course and marriage preparation. The second was a medical course on how to get along with a small family while the husband still was earning a small salary."

Judge Ewing sent the couple home.

Old McNary-Haugen Farm Relief Bill Minus Equalization Fee Introduced in the Senate

FEW MORE PROVISIONS ARE ADDED

SPONSOR OF THE MEASURE IS SENATOR McNARY OF OREGON

PROVIDES FEDERAL FARM BOARD REVOLVING FUND OF $300,000,000

By KENNETH G. CRAWFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Dec. 4. —The old McNary-Haugen farm relief bill with the equalization fee removed and a few new provisions added was introduced in the senate today by Senator McNary, republican, Oregon.

It provides for creation of a federal farm board with a revolving fund of $300,000,000 to finance surplus crop disposal and to promote orderly marketing of agricultural products.

The board would be authorized to loan money to stabilization corporations. The corporations, under this plan, would bear any losses in marketing their surpluses.

Only the expense of running the machinery of the bill would be more by the federal government. Under the old McNary-Haugen bill, twice vetoed by President Coolidge, the government agency itself would have handled the surplus in times of emergency and where losses were incurred would have levied a fee from the producers to reimburse the national treasury.

The new bill is based on the theory that the stabilization corporations themselves can handle any surplus and that no emergency requiring government handling will arise.

"Stabilization corporations are the heart of the plan," McNary said in a statement. "Through these corporations, owned and controlled by co-operative associations and other organizations of producers, the seasonal or year's total surpluses will be handled for the benefit of all producers, without putting on members of the co-operatives more than their fair share of the cost and responsibility in handling surplus crops."

"This plan goes beyond the old idea of merely loaning money to co-operative marketing associations. The corporations are authorized to handle as much of the surplus as may be necessary to orderly marketing, whether the products handled are produced by members of the co-operatives or by others."

The board, which the bill would empower to administer the plan, would have six members appointed by the president with the approval of the senate and the secretary of agriculture. Advisory councils would be composed of seven members selected by the board.

The bill not only would provide other methods of encouraging the co-operative movement. It could lend money to individual co-operatives and help provide price insurance to farmers.

"While this plan goes beyond any legislation yet enacted for the aid of farmers," McNary said, "its ultimate success is in part dependent on existing laws providing for agricultural credit, co-operative marketing, research in agriculture, adequate tariffs and other agricultural legislation."

The measure will be referred to the agricultural committee of which McNary himself is chairman and a prompt report is expected. Then the fight will be between McNary's followers, who want to pass a farm bill at this session, and the forces of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, who advocate delay until Hoover takes office and calls a special farm relief session.

London, Dec. 4. —King George rallied sufficiently from his critical illness today to preside over a privy council and to sign an order-in-council creating a commission to carry on the royal functions while he is incapacitated.

The Central News described the dramatic events of the morning at Buckingham Palace, telling how the privy council was conducted to the king's bedroom, where its members remained about ten minutes while the king signed the proclamation. The queen, although not a privy councillor, was present.

It was said to have been the first privy council ever held in the king's bed-chamber.

ACTIVITIES OF LIQUOR RING IN PHILADELPHIA ARE INVESTIGATED

CHAIN OF SHOOTINGS WERE ALL OF A REPRISAL NATURE

Philadelphia, Dec. 4. —(U.P.)—Evidence has been found linking at least 30 shootings, during the past two years, with activities of Philadelphia bootlegging interests. It was revealed today by representatives of District Attorney John Modaghan's office.

The revelation came after questioning of two men who, the district attorney's office believed, played prominent parts in some of the more recent shootings.

The chain of shootings, virtually all of a reprisal nature, according to the district attorney's representatives, was traced as far back as the murder of Joseph Zanghi and Vincent Cocozza on Memorial Day, 1927.

The murders of Hughie McLoon and Daniel O'Leary, which precipitated the investigation into Philadelphia's crime organization last August, were two links in the chain, it was said.

Evidence was obtained from Anthony (Musky) Zanghi and Luigi Quaranto, who was brought from an eastern penitentiary where he is serving a sentence for murder.

It was understood that the more important murders resulted from quarrels between factions. One group would encroach on the "district" of another gang. A shooting would follow. Then the reprisal came.

The grand jury was hearing detectives and learning of a new form of alleged police graft. Monaghan said he had discovered sales of useable stolen cars for as low as $1.

BOOKKEEPER SAYS COURTNEY THRUST GUN IN HIS RIBS DURING HOLDUP

Joe Courtney was brought shackled to Brainerd today to stand trial for complicity in the robbery of the First National Bank of Ironton in November, 1927.

He was brought to the city at noon and immediately placed in the county jail from which he was to be taken some time this afternoon and arraigned before Judge Bert Fessler in district court.

Courtney was returned from St. Paul after the St. Paul police department notified county authorities that they would relinquish their prisoner to Crow Wing county to stand trial for the Ironton robbery.

Courtney was reticent throughout the trip by automobile to Brainerd this morning. County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan in company with Sheriff Claus A. Theorin and Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg brought the prisoner to Brainerd.

It became known today that Thos. W. McMeekin, prominent Twin City attorney and former Brainerd boy, would conduct the defense for Courtney here.

The state prosecution will be conducted by the county attorney's office with possible assistance from the Attorney General's department.

COURTNEY ARRAIGNED THIS AFTERNOON

Courtney was arraigned before Judge Bert Fessler in district court this afternoon on two indictments charging robbery in the first degree and crime of entering a banking room to commit a felony, to which he defendant pleaded not guilty.

The date for Courtney's trial was set for Monday, January 7.

St. Paul, Dec. 4. —(U.P.)—Crow Wing county authorities today took into custody John J. "Joe" Courtney, and returned with him to Brainerd where he will go on trial for alleged participation in the $36,000 robbery of the First National Bank at Ironton in November, 1927.

Scarcely 12 hours before he began his journey north, Courtney was identified as one of the participants in the holdup of a second Minnesota institution during the past year.

A. R. Alverdes, bookkeeper of the Brown National Bank of Jackson, declared here late Monday that he was positive it was Courtney who thrust a gun at his ribs during the $25,000 holdup of the bank on September 28.

Courtney was reported amused by the charge but did not deny it.

The alleged gunman who was arrested here Friday upon the advice of Sheriff Claus A. Theorin of Brainerd, therefore faced two trials and may later be claimed by the federal government in connection with the robbery of mails at Hibbing and the operation of a liquor still near Brainerd.

Meanwhile there was a possibility that the Ramsey county grand jury would institute an investigation into the return of $20,000 loot taken from an armored pay car near South St. Paul last August. It was at first believed that Courtney was one of the four men who raided the pay roll car with tear gas bombs but the money guards were unable to identify him.

Police have so far been unable to suggest a motive for the return of the loot by a "tall, dark stranger." Apparently all that is known is the statement made by Roy J. Mordant, of the St. Paul legal firm, Sexton, Mordant & Kennedy, that the money was turned over to him by a representative of the bandits and he in turn repaid Twin City surety companies for the losses they suffered in the robbery.

St. Paul, Dec. 4. —(U.P.)—Shot when he attempted to escape from a policeman early today, Sigmund Pepinsky, former patrolman, was recaptured and held as a burglary suspect. Officer Frank Williams shot Pepinsky through the leg as he ran from a grocery store which had been forcibly entered.

Old McNary-Haugen Farm Relief Bill Minus Equalization Fee Introduced in the Senate

PROVIDES FEDERAL FARM BOARD REVOLVING FUND OF $300,000,000

By KENNETH G. CRAWFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Dec. 4. —The old McNary-Haugen farm relief bill with the equalization fee removed and a few new provisions added was introduced in the senate today by Senator McNary, republican, Oregon.

It provides for creation of a federal farm board with a revolving fund of $300,000,000 to finance surplus crop disposal and to promote orderly marketing of agricultural products.

The board would be authorized to loan money to stabilization corporations. The corporations, under this plan, would bear any losses in marketing their surpluses.

Only the expense of running the machinery of the bill would be more by the federal government. Under the old McNary-Haugen bill, twice vetoed by President Coolidge, the government agency itself would have handled the surplus in times of emergency and where losses were incurred would have levied a fee from the producers to reimburse the national treasury.

The new bill is based on the theory that the stabilization corporations themselves can handle any surplus and that no emergency requiring government handling will arise.

"Stabilization corporations are the heart of the plan," McNary said in a statement. "Through these corporations, owned and controlled by co-operative associations and other organizations of producers, the seasonal or year's total surpluses will be handled for the benefit of all producers, without putting on members of the co-operatives more than their fair share of the cost and responsibility in handling surplus crops."

The measure will be referred to the agricultural committee of which McNary himself is chairman and a prompt report is expected. He was brought to the city at noon and immediately placed in the county jail from which he was to be taken some time this afternoon and arraigned before Judge Bert Fessler in district court.

Courtney was returned from St. Paul after the St. Paul police department notified county authorities that they would relinquish their prisoner to Crow Wing county to stand trial for the Ironton robbery.

Courtney was reticent throughout the trip by automobile to Brainerd this morning. County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan in company with Sheriff Claus A. Theorin and Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg brought the prisoner to Brainerd.

It became known today that Thos. W. McMeekin, prominent Twin City attorney and former Brainerd boy, would conduct the defense for Courtney here.

The state prosecution will be conducted by the county attorney's office with possible assistance from the Attorney General's department.

COURTNEY ARRAIGNED THIS AFTERNOON

Courtney was arraigned before Judge Bert Fessler in district court this afternoon on two indictments charging robbery in the first degree and crime of entering a banking room to commit a felony, to which he defendant pleaded not guilty.

The date for Courtney's trial was set for Monday, January 7.

St. Paul, Dec. 4. (U.P.) — Crow Wing county authorities today took into custody John J. "Joe" Courtney, and returned with him to Brainerd where he will go on trial for alleged participation in the $36,000 robbery of the First National Bank at Ironton in November, 1927.

Scarcely 12 hours before he began his journey north, Courtney was identified as one of the participants in the holdup of a second Minnesota institution during the past year.

A. R. Alverdes, bookkeeper of the Brown National Bank of Jackson, declared here late Monday that he was positive it was Courtney who thrust a gun at his ribs during the $25,000 holdup of the bank on September 28.

Courtney was reported amused by the charge but did not deny it.

The alleged gunman who was arrested here Friday upon the advice of Sheriff Claus A. Theorin of Brainerd, therefore faced two trials and may later be claimed by the federal government in connection with the robbery of mails at Hibbing and the operation of a liquor still near Brainerd.

Meanwhile there was a possibility that the Ramsey county grand jury would institute an investigation into the return of $20,000 loot taken from an armored pay car near South St. Paul last August. It was at first believed that Courtney was one of the four men who raided the pay roll car with tear gas bombs but the money guards were unable to identify him.

Police have so far been unable to suggest a motive for the return of the loot by a "tall, dark stranger." Apparently all that is known is the statement made by Roy J. Mordant, of the St. Paul legal firm, Sexton, Mordant & Kennedy, that the money was turned over to him by a representative of the bandits and he in turn repaid Twin City surety companies for the losses they suffered in the robbery.

St. Paul, Dec. 4. (U.P.)—Shot when he attempted to escape from a policeman early today, Sigmund Pepinsky, former patrolman, was recaptured and held as a burglary suspect. Officer Frank Williams shot Pepinsky through the leg as he ran from a grocery store which had been forcibly entered.

Are Survivors of Band Which Survived Shipwreck in North Pacific

Four reindeer who survived a shipwreck in the North Pacific en route from Nome, Alaska to Seattle and who travelled from there by train to the Northland Reindeer Ranch near Duluth were today seeing Brainerd as their manager and two real honest to goodness Eskimos were resting before proceeding to Milaca where they are scheduled to present a Santa Claus show tomorrow.

The four reindeer were among the 224 reindeer rescued when the ship they were being transported on braved heavy seas and came out of them with a loss of 76 reindeer.

Dunder, Blitzen, Comet and Vixen were the objects of much interest today as they were taken from a truck at Rosko's garage and paraded about in the streets adjoining for their daily exercises.

Tatak (Big Bear) or George Earth as he is known in English and Ertak (Little Bear) or John Razier as his name is interpreted attracted almost as much interest as the reindeer. The two are dyed in the wood Eskimos and have weathered many a long winter in Alaska.

Their manager, M. L. Chase, watched maneuvers with as much interest as the people who had gathered for he never tires to watch the antics of the sensitive game from the far north. Mr. Chase explained that the Northland Reindeer Ranch of Duluth was the largest reindeer ranch in the United States. He stated that at the present time the company owned 50 reindeer and that additional reindeer were expected from Alaska for the Christmas rush. The reindeer are placed in groups of four and these are used in presenting Christmas pageants. Following the pageant at Milaca tomorrow the show will move to Faribault.

Thirty two members of the American Legion, the Legion Auxiliary and the Legion band from Brainerd, chartered a bus to attend the District Rally of the American Legion at Staples last evening. There was also the joint meeting of the Legion and Auxiliary. The snow made hard going, but the delegates reached Staples in plenty of time.

Among the speakers were: District Commander Bouch of Rice, and the district president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Foster of St. Cloud, in which she praised the Auxiliary band of Brainerd very highly.

A couple solos were rendered by Al Mraz, one of which he was accompanied by the band, and the other by piano. The ladies band also gave several selections which were greatly enjoyed.

Each of the commanders of the different posts represented also gave a short talk.

A three piece orchestra furnished music for a couple hours of dancing. A very delicious lunch was served, consisting of chicken chow mein, hot coffee, buns and cake.

Ryan-Sullivan

The morning of Thanksgiving day, November 29, 1928, at the St. Philip's church in Litchfield, occurred the marriage of Gilbert Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sullivan of Brainerd, Minn., and Miss Mary Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan of Litchfield. Father James Ryan, of the St. Marks church, St. Paul, and a brother of the bride, read the beautiful ceremonies when the young folks plighted their troth before the altar.

The bride wore a simple silk crepe Roumain dress of Burgundy red with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of pale pink bride's roses. Miss Winifred Sullivan, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She was attired in a simple silk crepe roumaine dress of brown, with hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow tea roses. Math Ryan, brother of the bride, was groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents when a three course dinner was served. Eighteen immediate relatives with their families were present. Among them were the following from away: Father Pat Ryan of Minneapolis, Father James Ryan of St. Paul, Miss Winifred Sullivan of Duluth, Matt Ryan of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Enright, Miss Lucille Enright and Mrs. Pat Dillon of Eden Valley. The parents of the groom were unable to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will visit relatives in Milwaukee and Chicago and after December 21st they will be at home in St. Paul, where Mr. Sullivan has employment with the State Highway department.

The bride has been a resident of Meeker county all her life, first in Manannah township and later in Litchfield village and she has a host of friends. Mr. Sullivan has visited here a few times and was stationed here for some time by the Highway department. Their many friends are wishing them a long and happy married life.

PROPER CARE OF CAR IN WINTER DRIVING

Henry Mills Outlines Helpful Hints to Protect Car From Winter Troubles

PREPARATION NECESSARY

Automobile Will Not Suffer if Certain Established Rules Are Followed

Care of an automobile during the winter months should be as important to its owner as his selection in purchasing a new model in the opinion of Henry C. Mills, president of the Lively Auto Co. who today outlined a system, to protect a car against undue wear and tear, not generally known by the motoring public.

Changing weather conditions require certain fundamental processes, application of which will result in longer life and better service to the car. In this respect Mr. Mills advises the following steps in preparing a car to meet the hardships of winter:

Adjust carburetor.

Wash out transmission and install motor oil.

Wash out rear axle and install grease with zero cold test.

Use alcohol in radiator.

Use radiator winter front.

Clean and adjust distributor points and spark plugs to insure easy starting.

Have valves ground and carbon cleaned.

Set up generator charging rate to keep battery fully charged.

To secure the best results from a car during the winter months, Mr. Mills suggests:

Never start the motor unless the oil gauge shows pressure on the dash.

Do not race motor when cold to warm it up quickly.

Do not run any distance with carburetor choke out.

Do not drive with a frozen radiator.

Be sure all hoses and water connections are good.

To start car, advance the gas one quarter way and retard the spark a little over half way. Turn motor over several times before pulling out the choke. Release clutch while starting.

Use Tielene oil and Energee gas. Store your car in Lively Auto Co.'s warm garage where you can get service day and night.

Aids Protein in Wheat

Protein content of winter wheat may be increased one-third in more by application of sodium nitrate to the field when the wheat is heading, the Department of Agriculture says.

Hats off to the humble peanut!

Once considered only fit to feed to hogs, nutrition experts have discovered that peanuts are a worthy dish to set before the king or queen of any household, according to Otto Schnering, president of the Baby Ruth Candy and Gum companies, producers of "Chicos," specially prepared salted Spanish peanuts.

"Peanuts contain two proteins—arachin and conarachin—that are among the highest in nutritive quality," Mr. Schnering said. "Both of these proteins contain amino acids, several of which are essential for the normal growth and nutrition of the human body."

"Chicos," the Spanish word for dainty morsels, was selected as the name for his new product, according to Mr. Schnering, because the peanuts are carefully toasted and salted to conform with their name.

The Curtiss Company is spending $50,000 to advertise their new product in this state alone.

BUILDING ERA DAWNS FOR BRAINERD

AN era for building is dawning in Brainerd. We are right on the threshold. There are no "maybes" about it, for the building has been contracted for and construction will soon be under way.

The first project is the new Junior-Senior high school which will represent an investment of $425,000. Bids for all sections of this large undertaking were awarded at the Saturday meeting of the Brainerd board of education. The building must be completed by October 1, 1929. Contractors in these modern days are not deterred by winter weather and the construction work will speed up so that brick laying may be under way by March 1.

Syreen Brothers are to erect a modern filling station on their site, northeast corner of Oak and South Sixth streets, representing an investment of over $40,000. This initial outlay may be followed by other improvements on this corner. The beautiful station they erected on West Laurel street near the Mississippi river bridge is an indication of the rare taste and discrimination they have adopted in their building plans.

Con O'Brien is under lease and contract to have the Montgomery Ward & Company two-story terra cotta and brick building on the southwest corner of Laurel and Broadway completed and ready for occupancy by June 1, 1929. This will mark a great improvement in this section of the business district. Cutting off 50 feet front of the old Pearce block to set up the new building, will also necessitate improvement of the remainder.

With the business section and other improvements now evidently forthcoming, it is hoped that Finkelstein & Ruben, amusement purveyors par excellence, will remember their promises made to Brainerd and will inaugurate the improvements at the Park theater. It is an axiom of the business world that a "good front" attracts business. We have heard people say that plans have already been drawn by Finkelstein & Ruben for the improvements and all that it requires is a rallying of the civic spirit of Brainerd and impressing the same upon this great amusement enterprise association and the building will proceed forthwith and in line with the other construction work in the city.

One need not be versed in the ethics of amusement to know that beautiful architecture, many conveniences, etc., attract people to the show houses. Examine any of the Finkelstein & Ruben theatres in the many other cities of several states where they are represented and you will notice the superb architecture which characterizes their buildings.

We hope that they will be included in the forward movement in Brainerd which means much to this city and which will well illustrate the old business axiom, that good business attracts more business.

Out in the lake country we have evidence of the desire of lake cottage owners to spend the year 'round at their homes and not to limit their stay to just the summer season. A $30,000 summer home has just been completed by Harold E. Atkinson, Minneapolis business man, on his 38-acre estate on the north shore of North Long lake, 12 miles northwest of Brainerd, which he purchased from the Anton Mahlum estate. The building is of log siding, but is furnished and equipped so as to make it a comfortable all-year-around home. The grounds will be landscaped next spring. Mr. Atkinson's property is almost a primitive forest, with elm, oak, birch, maple and white pine trees covering it. It is part of the original grant of Chief Hole-in-the-Day, Chippewa warrior who was a friend of the early white pioneers. There are still standing on the estate many maple trees which were tapped years ago by the Indians in the days when the "sugar bush" region was an important source of the syrup supply. The lake home is 42x44 feet, and has a glazed porch 12x42 feet. It is provided with all modern conveniences, electric light and power, furnace, circulating water, telephone, etc. The fireplace at one end of the large living room is of cobblestone and is 10 feet wide. The living room also has a high ceiling.

Other lake residences are in contemplation for next season. There are rumors of a large $150,000 summer hotel on Gull lake near the Harrison & Start 18-hole bent grass golf course at Pine Beach. There are rumors of another summer hotel at Manhattan Beach on White Fish or Trout lakes.

At Breezy Point where a large convention building was erected last year in time for the flood of conventions at this popular resort, more cottages and other improvements are rumored.

In Brainerd an apartment hotel is rumored and many new residences. At the Gateway Inn on Trunk Road No. 19 it is reported many cottages are to be built.

And the dairy country is not neglected either. Lampert Brothers Lumber Co., the Standard Lumber Company and Hayes-Lucas Lumber Company were busy in many residence, lake and farm projects. One concern furnished lumber and other building supplies for six dairy barns, averaging in value $2,000 to $3,000.

THE banker of the coming generation will hesitate to lend money to a businessman who is not advertising, for they know he is probably due for a deficit. Likewise investors will look more and more keenly into the advertising policies of corporations whose stocks and bonds are offered for sale. A permanently successful business is never born great, but must achieve greatness—with advertising playing almost indispensable role.—Roger W. Babson, Economist, in Owatonna Journal.

THE lake region winter this year comes some months later than last year. In 1927 we received our first snow in October. Householders started to shovel coal in October and kept it up until May, almost eight months of winter. This year the first big fall was recorded December 2 and 3. It will stimulate business in seasonal supplies.

A MAN has invented a rocket car which gains speed and momentum from the rockets fired at intervals. The German contraption was going good until the last rocket blew up the whole contrivance.

THAT man Hoover means business. Two weeks ago he announced his unique good will trip to South America and last Monday he was on the way there.—Anoka Herald.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM GIVEN IN COURT HOUSE WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Fires, lack of stage facilities, and all the difficulties that can be experienced in makeshift buildings, could not deter the teachers in charge, Misses Sundberg and Marshall, from presenting an excellent Thanksgiving program in the old Court House last Wednesday afternoon to a delighted and appreciative audience. The whole affair was a decided success from beginning to end in spite of the many handicaps which were all overcome by the performers and the advisers.

The orchestra played in the hall but its heroic effort were well applauded. The Tuesday chorus of the girls' Glee club sang a group of two Thanksgiving songs, both of which were well sung. Then came "Grandpa" in the person of Dwight Curo whose reminiscences were delicious to say the least.

To be thankful for all our blessings was the theme of the playlet called "The Dreamer." Those who took part in the skit were:

The Dreamer—Harold Strickler.
Deaf Boy—Bernard Lind.
Poor Farm Boy—Fred Doepeke.
Newsboy—Clyde Brandow.
Boy Who Couldn't Learn—Oren Gillette.
Cripple Boy—Donald Nelson.
Blind Boy—Adolph Sanberg.
The wishbone was considered to be the best part of the turkey by children who quarreled for the coveted prize. In the sketch entitled, "Thanksgiving Turkey." This sketch was presented very cleverly by the following:

Cook—Louise Clausen.
The Neck—Joe Marchel.
Drumstick—Israel Perlman.
Other Drumstick—Donald Hanson.
Wing—Elaine Cook.
Other Wing—Florence Nesheim.
Back—Reynold Larson.
Gizzard—Dave Templeton.
Stuffing—Florence Jones.
Liver—James Falconer.
Heart—Leona Schubert.
Wishbone—Margaret Padgett.
Children—Linda Zawadzki, Alice Nolan, Janet Kampmann.
Young Lady—Marjory Forsberg.
Young Man—Glendene Bentley.

After Carl Zapffe had read the president's Thanksgiving proclamation, the entire assembly sang America the Beautiful, as the concluding number of this program.

If this presentation is any indication of affairs which are to come monthly, then the entire student body lives in keen anticipation of future diversions.

Monday afternoon a number of Miss Herwig's Modern History students explored the attic of the old Court House in search of some history books, which could replace in part the library which burned in the fire.

The search resulted in the discovery of some encyclopedias and a few other books on diverse subjects. These books were taken to Miss Herwig's room and cleaned with a rubbery composition and are now ready for use there.

IN THE CLASSROOM

Three poems have been pondered over and studied by the English I students of Miss Marshall's classes. Deep concentration was required although no one received a split brain or serious headache from working their mental powers too strenuously.

Doubts of ever receiving a passing mark or an "A" assailed the brightest students for awhile, but their fears vanished when they discovered that the author had written little notes and explanations on the side lines for their benefit.

This study became real absorbing by the time the middle of "The Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner" was reached and Miss Marshall found it easy to keep even the most frisky students absorbed in the interesting work.

Interesting posters featuring personal health were made in Miss Spencer's General Science classes last week. The illustrations were very good, but the original drawings are considered best. Melvin Moe drew an exceptionally clever one, illustrating the effects of an unbalanced diet. Gilda Meline and Anna Bachanan also had effective posters. Gilda's was a silhouette of a drinking fountain, and Anna's illustrated the precautions that should be taken before retiring in the evening.

Some booklets were also handed in; among these Evangeline Somerville's was the outstanding one.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE HAS NO HOME GAMES

Basketball is again a reality at B. H. S. with the discovery of a practice floor located in a downtown store building to take the place of the gym destroyed by the fire. Practice was officially opened last Tuesday, with about 25 candidates reporting and since that date Coach Kaseh has been working at full speed rounding his squad into shape preparatory to a hard schedule. Because the floor is not of regulation size and the ceiling is too low to permit long shots all the games will be played away from home. This condition makes the schedule doubly hard and it will take a real team to get through the season without a defeat.

The schedule follows, clip it for your girl grad:

Dec. 14—Aitkin, there.
Jan. 11—Staples, there.
Jan. 18—Crosby-Ironton, there.
Jan. 25—Little Falls, there.
Jan. 26—St. Cloud Tech, there.
Feb. 1—Wadena, there.
Feb. 5—Bemidji, there.
Feb. 8—Pine River, there.

SENIOR HI-Y AT BOYS' CONFERENCE

By GAYLORD KINNEY

The Northwestern Minnesota Hi-Y organizations held their annual Old Boys' Conference at Duluth, November 30 to December 2. The idea of these conferences is to give the young man or boy a look at the different side of life, to compare his life with that of Christ, to compare his club with other clubs, and to get ideas from others or better, to give them ideas.

The Brainerd delegation arrived Friday at 4:30. The opening session was at 5. The boys had a small business meeting and song until 6 o'clock. At 7 the delegates again met at the Central high school. "All" Dillon, who was the secretary of the Brainerd Y. M. C. A. two years ago, led in songs which were followed by selections from the Apollo male quartet of Duluth. Rev. Frank Jennings of Minneapolis then delivered a very good talk on "My Personality." Following the address, guest groups were held. These groups were for the boys to ask questions of any nature or trouble that they had in clubs or schools. The leader and the boys would help answer the question. The guest groups adjourned about 9:15.

The Saturday session started at 9. The morning was occupied by songs, vocal solos, guest groups, and another very interesting talk by Mr. Jennings on "The Fundamentals of Religion." The conference picture was taken at 11:45. At noon an excellent dinner was served at the Central high school by the local Y. M. C. A.

At 1:45 the boys were again called to the auditorium for the afternoon program. The election of officers was first on the program. Then the Methods group which were about the same as the guest groups were in progress until 3. From 3 to 6 was recreation. The delegates could go swimming or to the gym and then to the Y. M. C. A. auditorium where "California in '49," a movie, was shown. At 6:15 came the banquet in the Spalding hotel. Mr. Jennings again gave an excellent speech, "The Personality of Jesus" which was the main event of the banquet.

Sunday the boys attended church with their host and hostesses. The meeting started at 2:30 p. m. with special music and speech. The Brainerd delegation left soon after dinner to get back to Brainerd so they missed the afternoon session, much to their regret.

Those who attended the Conference were Gaylord Kinney, Joe Heald, Ross Olmsted, Elwood Johnson, Asle Trommald, Drexel Geist, Lyle and Gaylord Anderson, Russell Nelson, Carl Holvick, and L. L. Peterson, secretary of the Brainerd Y. M. C. A.

The Senior Hi-Y met last Tuesday, November 27 at 6 o'clock in their club room upstairs in the Y. M. C. A. A supper was served by the food committee, Joe Heald and Lyle Creger.

UPPER CLASSMEN ENTERTAINED AT THANKSGIVING PROGRAM

LETTERMEN FED BY THE GARVEYS

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Garvey entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at Garvey's restaurant in honor of the B. H. S. football lettermen. Of the 18 lettermen, 15 were present and enjoyed the chicken dinner to the utmost.

After the repast the question of next year's captain was brought up. After the ballots were counted it was found that Arthur Hautala had been unanimously elected captain and amid the cheers of his teammates expressed his views in regard to next year's team.

Arthur, who has earned two letters in football, received his first letter for his services in the backfield. At the start of the '28 season he was again groomed for a backfield post but because of the ineligibility of the regular center, it was necessary to shift him to that position. He performed creditably throughout the season and deserves praise for his ability to adapt himself to his new position in such a short period of time.

BRAINONIAN SKIT GIVEN FOR FROSH

It was three-forty Thursday, time for the bell to ring. Instead of one bell there were two, indicating there was an assembly call.

Nothing was announced and in came Doris Geist in an attempted boy's garb and indignantly said, "Photographic." Then Allan McKay entered and quoted "Reminiscence." "What's this all about?" was a question being asked by everyone in the assembly. Helen Sheets followed Allan and added "Indian-Themed."

Vernon Marshall then came in and sincerely shouted "Hand-drawn." Next Betty Robertson entered the assembly and brightly stated, "Original." By this time, the assembly looked like a question mark. Then in came Zane Smith and boldly quipped, "Interesting." There were now six people in the front of the assembly and then Louis Cook entered the assembly and very gracefully added, "Beautiful." Then Ralph Anderson changed the questioning look of the assembly by grandiloquently saying, "Brainonian, '29." The participants were clothed in the opposite sex's garments.

Then, facing the audience they said in unison, "Bring your 50c (pause) tomorrow!" Carl Zapffe then dismissed the assembly.

This skit, noted for its brevity and originality, brought the attention of the entire assembly to the "Bigger and Better Brainonian" of 1929.

WIND

All day the wind has whistled,
And torn at the corners and eaves,
And shrieked and sobbed around the tree-trunks,
Like a stricken old giant who grieves.

He whips the bare, leafless branches,
And whirls the dead leaves in the lane.
He seems to be seeking a partner,
For his grieving, and worry, and pain.

At last, when the evening's descender,
There comes from the land of the West,
A cloud of God's own snowflakes,
To lull the old giant to rest.

Reynold Larson.

Students of B. H. S. were very sorry to hear of the illness of two of their teachers, namely Miss Erstad and Miss Ruthe.

Miss Erstad was stricken with erysipelas last Wednesday. She is at her home in Foreston, Minn., where she will recuperate for a few weeks.

Miss Ruthe underwent a minor operation a week ago Saturday, at St. Joseph's hospital, but is feeling much better and was able to enjoy the Thanksgiving holidays.

The Faculty and students wish the two teachers a speedy recovery. Mrs. G. H. Stone is substituting for Miss Erstad, while Mrs. W. E. Kaseh and Miss Katherine Nelson are taking Miss Ruthe's place.

Miss Erstad would no doubt appreciate an epistle or two from her students and all others who know her.

By ORRIS LARSON

In accordance with an old B. H. S. custom, a fitting Thanksgiving program was rendered in both schools. The City Hall assembly was packed to capacity and a few more also. Four features, including a play, a reading by Mildred Prentice, an accordion solo by Allen Evans and a group of numbers by the famous local high school quartet were given.

With the curtain, a cook (Louise Clausen) was admiring her fine work in the way of cookery when called by some one of higher authority. The turkey seized this opportunity to relax slightly and have a little rub down. Then the parts of the turkey conversed about this thing and that until an argument resulted concerning the best liked part of said turkey. Whereupon followed a session of district court with the neck (Joe Marshall) as judge.

One by one, the witnesses took the stand. The two drumsticks (Donald Hanson, Israel Perlman) asserted that they are delicious and juicy, therefore the more popular with the diners. The neck calls a next witness which is a wing (Florence Nesheim) and due to insinuating evidence is ruled out. The back (Reynold Larson) grabs his chance to display his wares, stating that he is the largest, most savory and first picked section. The stuffing (Florence Jones) reminds him that he has to be picked all day in order to remove all the bones from his anatomy and then reiterates that he (himself) has no bones and is all meat. The heart (Leona Schubert) takes up the argument by exclaiming that she is the center of attention when the liver (James Falconer) puts in his viewpoints followed by the gizzard (Dave Templeton). The neck is forced to use all court discipline to retain order. The wishbone (Margaret Padgett) did not seem to get a word in edgewise. The drumsticks then raise a hullabaloo fearing they were being forgotten.

At this point the diners enter and voice opinions on the turkey, which has resumed its original position. The children (Alice Nolan, Janet Kampmann, Linda Zawadzki) all holler in modest tones that they preferred the wishbone. The young lady and young man (Glendene Bentley and Marjorie Forsberg) also clamor for the Y-shaped bone. Then they all retreat to grandfather's study to get his views at which time the parts of the turkey are satisfied which is the most popular section.

Next in line was a musical program with an accordionist called Allen Evans, who proved himself to be a real musician. He gave a group of three numbers and was encored for at least three more. Everyone enjoyed Allen and his piano-accordion.

Mildred Prentiss gave an interesting and laugh-producing reading on the edibles of the Thanksgiving dinner.

The boy's quartet of B. H. S., famed from coast to coast for their harmonious rendition of humorous numbers, appeared on the stage to climax the afternoon. The boys (Roland Jenkins, Harry Goedderz, William McClenahan and Guy Hawkins) sang "Old McDonald Had a Farm," which, of the three they gave, gained the most applause. The glaring (?) footlights didn't appear to bother the boys much since all numbers were given in a very creditable fashion.

As a result of the Thanksgiving drive the students of B. H. S. contributed a total amount of about $15.75. This sum was used to purchase meat for baskets, the food for which had been bought by contributions from the grade pupils.

Miss Michael expressed much pleasure as to the results of the contributions.

BUILDING ERA DAWNS FOR BRAINERD

AN era for building is dawning in Brainerd. We are right on the threshold. There are no "maybes" about it, for the building has been contracted for and construction will soon be under way.

The first project is the new Junior-Senior high school which will represent an investment of $425,000. Bids for all sections of this large undertaking were awarded at the Saturday meeting of the Brainerd board of education. The building must be completed by October 1, 1929. Contractors in these modern days are not deterred by winter weather and the construction work will speed up so that brick laying may be under way by March 1.

Syreen Brothers are to erect a modern filling station on their site, northeast corner of Oak and South Sixth streets, representing an investment of over $40,000. This initial outlay may be followed by other improvements on this corner. The beautiful station they erected on West Laurel street near the Mississippi river bridge is an indication of the rare taste and discrimination they have adopted in their building plans.

Con O'Brien is under lease and contract to have the Montgomery Ward & Company two-story terra cotta and brick building on the southwest corner of Laurel and Broadway completed and ready for occupancy by June 1, 1929. This will mark a great improvement in this section of the business district. Cutting off 50 feet front of the old Pearce block to set up the new building, will also necessitate improvement of the remainder.

With the business section and other improvements now evidently forthcoming, it is hoped that Finkelstein & Ruben, amusement purveyors par excellence, will remember their promises made to Brainerd and will inaugurate the improvements at the Park theater. It is an axiom of the business world that a "good front" attracts business. We have heard people say that plans have already been drawn by Finkelstein & Ruben for the improvements and all that it requires is a rallying of the civic spirit of Brainerd and impressing the same upon this great amusement enterprise association and the building will proceed forthwith and in line with the other construction work in the city.

One need not be versed in the ethics of amusement to know that beautiful architecture, many conveniences, etc., attract people to the show houses. Examine any of the Finkelstein & Ruben theatres in the many other cities of several states where they are represented and you will notice the superb architecture which characterizes their buildings.

We hope that they will be included in the forward movement in Brainerd which means much to this city and which will well illustrate the old business axiom, that good business attracts more business.

Out in the lake country we have evidence of the desire of lake cottage owners to spend the year 'round at their homes and not to limit their stay to just the summer season. A $30,000 summer home has just been completed by Harold E. Atkinson, Minneapolis business man, on his 38-acre estate on the north shore of North Long lake, 12 miles northwest of Brainerd, which he purchased from the Anton Mahlum estate. The building is of log siding, but is furnished and equipped so as to make it a comfortable all-year-around home. The grounds will be landscaped next spring. Mr. Atkinson's property is almost a primitive forest, with elm, oak, birch, maple and white pine trees covering it. It is part of the original grant of Chief Hole-in-the-Day, Chippewa warrior who was a friend of the early white pioneers. There are still standing on the estate many maple trees which were tapped years ago by the Indians in the days when the "sugar bush" region was an important source of the syrup supply. The lake home is 42x44 feet, and has a glazed porch 12x42 feet. It is provided with all modern conveniences, electric light and power, furnace, circulating water, telephone, etc. The fireplace at one end of the large living room is of cobblestone and is 10 feet wide. The living room also has a high ceiling.

Other lake residences are in contemplation for next season. There are rumors of a large $150,000 summer hotel on Gull lake near the Harrison & Start 18-hole bent grass golf course at Pine Beach. There are rumors of another summer hotel at Manhattan Beach on White Fish or Trout lakes.

At Breezy Point where a large convention building was erected last year in time for the flood of conventions at this popular resort, more cottages and other improvements are rumored.

In Brainerd an apartment hotel is rumored and many new residences. At the Gateway Inn on Trunk Road No. 19 it is reported many cottages are to be built.

And the dairy country is not neglected either. Lampert Brothers Lumber Co., the Standard Lumber Company and Hayes-Lucas Lumber Company were busy in many residence, lake and farm projects. One concern furnished lumber and other building supplies for six dairy barns, averaging in value $2,000 to $3,000.

THE banker of the coming generation will hesitate to lend money to a businessman who is not advertising, for they know he is probably due for a deficit. Likewise investors will look more and more keenly into the advertising policies of corporations whose stocks and bonds are offered for sale. A permanently successful business is never born great, but must achieve greatness—with advertising playing almost indispensable role.—Roger W. Babson, Economist, in Owatonna Journal.

THE lake region winter this year comes some months later than last year. In 1927 we received our first snow in October. Householders started to shovel coal in October and kept it up until May, almost eight months of winter. This year the first big fall was recorded December 2 and 3. It will stimulate business in seasonal supplies.

UPPER CLASSMEN ENTERTAINED AT THANKSGIVING PROGRAM

LETTERMEN FED BY THE GARVEYS

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Garvey entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at Garvey's restaurant in honor of the B. H. S. football lettermen. Of the 18 lettermen, 15 were present and enjoyed the chicken dinner to the utmost.

After the repast the question of next year's captain was brought up. After the ballots were counted it was found that Arthur Hautala had been unanimously elected captain and amid the cheers of his teammates expressed his views in regard to next year's team.

Arthur, who has earned two letters in football, received his first letter for his services in the backfield. At the start of the '28 season he was again groomed for a backfield post but because of the ineligibility of the regular center, it was necessary to shift him to that position. He performed creditably throughout the season and deserves praise for his ability to adapt himself to his new position in such a short period of time.

BRAINONIAN SKIT GIVEN FOR FROSH

It was three-forty Thursday, time for the bell to ring. Instead of one bell there were two, indicating there was an assembly call.

Nothing was announced and in came Doris Geist in an attempted boy's garb and indignantly said, "Photographic." Then Allan McKay entered and quoted "Reminiscence." "What's this all about?" was a question being asked by everyone in the assembly. Helen Sheets followed Allan and added "Indian-Themed."

Vernon Marshall then came in and sincerely shouted "Hand-drawn." Next Betty Robertson entered the assembly and brightly stated, "Original." By this time, the assembly looked like a question mark. Then in came Zane Smith and boldly quoted, "Interesting." There were now six people in the front of the assembly and then Louis Cook entered the assembly and very gracefully added, "Beautiful." Then Ralph Anderson changed the questioning look of the assembly by grandiloquently saying, "Brainonian, '29." The participants were clothed in the opposite sex's garments.

Then, facing the audience they said in unison, "Bring your 50c (pause) tomorrow!" Carl Zapffe then dismissed the assembly.

This skit, noted for its brevity and originality, brought the attention of the entire assembly to the "Bigger and Better Brainonian" of 1929.

WIND

All day the wind has whistled, And torn at the corners and eaves, And shrieked and sobbed around the tree-trunks.

Like a stricken old giant who grieves, He whips the bare, leafless branches, And whirls the dead leaves in the lane, He seems to be seeking a partner, For his grieving, and worry, and pain.

At last, when the evening's descend-er, There comes from the land of the blest, A cloud of God's own snowflakes, To lull the old giant to rest.

Reynold Larson.

Students of B. H. S. were very sorry to hear of the illness of two of their teachers, namely Miss Erstad and Miss Ruthe.

Miss Erstad was stricken with erysipelas last Wednesday. She is at her home in Foreston, Minn., where she will recuperate for a few weeks.

Miss Ruthe underwent a minor operation a week ago Saturday, at St. Joseph's hospital, but is feeling much better and was able to enjoy the Thanksgiving holidays.

The Faculty and students wish the two teachers a speedy recovery.

Mrs. G. H. Stone is substituting for Miss Erstad, while Mrs. W. E. Kasch and Miss Katherine Nelson are taking Miss Ruthe's place.

Miss Erstad would no doubt appreciate an epistle or two from her students and all others who know her.

In accordance with an old B. H. S. custom, a fitting Thanksgiving program was rendered in both schools. The City Hall assembly was packed to capacity and a few more also. Four features, including a play, a reading by Mildred Prentice, an accordion solo by Allen Evans and a group of numbers by the famous local high school quartet were given.

With the curtain, a cook (Louise Clausen) was admiring her fine work in the way of cookery when called by some one of higher authority. The turkey seized this opportunity to relax slightly and have a little rub down. Then the parts of the turkey conversed about this thing and that until an argument resulted concerning the best liked part of said turkey. Whereupon followed a session of district court with the neck (Joe Marshall) as judge.

One by one, the witnesses took the stand. The two drumsticks (Donald Hanson, Israel Perlman) assert that they are delicious and juicy, therefore the more popular with the diners. The neck calls a next witness which is a wing (Florence Nesheim) and due to insinuating evidence is ruled out. The back (Reynold Larson) grabs his chance to display his wares, stating that he is the largest, most savory and first picked section. The stuffing (Florence Jones) reminds him that he has to be picked all day in order to remove all the bones from his anatomy and then reiterates that he (himself) has no bones and is all meat. The heart (Leona Schubert) takes up the argument by exclaiming that she is the center of attention when the liver (James Falconer) puts in his viewpoints followed by the gizzard (Dave Templeton). The neck is forced to use all court discipline to retain order. The wishbone (Margaret Padgett) did not seem to get a word in edgewise. The drumsticks then raise a hullabaloo fearing they were being forgotten.

At this point the diners enter and voice opinions on the turkey, which has resumed its original position. The children (Alice Nolan, Janet Kampmann, Linda Zawadzki) all holler in modest tones that they preferred the wishbone. The young lady and young man (Glendale Bentley and Marjorie Forsberg) also clamor for the Y-shaped bone. Then they all retreat to grandfather's study to get his views at which time the parts of the turkey are satisfied which is the most popular section.

Next in line was a musical program with an accordionist called Allen Evans, who proved himself to be a real musician. He gave a group of three numbers and was encored for at least three more. Everyone enjoyed Allen and his piano-accordion.

Mildred Prentiss gave an interesting and laugh-producing reading on the edibles of the Thanksgiving dinner.

The boy's quartet of B. H. S., famed from coast to coast for their harmonious rendition of humorous numbers, appeared on the stage to climax the afternoon. The boys (Roland Jenkins, Harry Goeddeiz, William McClenahan and Guy Hawkins) sang "Old McDonald Had a Farm," which, of the three they gave, gained the most applause. The glaring (?) footlights didn't appear to bother the boys much since all numbers were given in a very creditable fashion.

As a result of the Thanksgiving drive the students of B. H. S. contributed a total amount of about $15.75. This sum was used to purchase meat for baskets, the food for which had been bought by contributions from the grade pupils.

Miss Michael expressed much pleasure as to the results of the contributions.

The New Featherweight King

Andre ROUTIS

FRENCH ORPHAN BOY OF BORDEAUX, WHO WON THE TITLE FROM TONY CANZONERI

ANDRE IS WHAT THEY REFER TO IN THE CAULIFLOWER RACKET AS AN ELBOW FIGHTER.

By QUIN HALL

ANDRE ROUTIS, the new king of the featherweights, is a Frenchman—an orphan boy from Bordeaux, who tossed aside his automobile mechanic's tools in 1919 to work as a planter—at least he went into the business of planting solid socks against various parts of his opponent's anatomy—and has done very well at it.

Route's father was killed in the closing days of the World War and his mother died of a heart attack when she received the sad news. Andre tried to drown his sorrow in vin blanc one night and got into a quarrel with another lad and on the strength of his showing in that set-to young Route decided that he would find out how good he might be in a ring fighting for real money.

It wasn't so long ago that Route was given his shot at the crown held by Tony Canzoneri, of Brooklyn. The affair was staged in Madison Square Garden and while it was a championship fuss it wasn't nearly a sell-out, interest seeming to lag, with the dancing Canzoneri given a sufficient margin to win long before fight time. The fray was the full distance of fifteen rounds, but the dope was upset when the Frenchman came home carrying eleven of the sessions neatly wrapped up and tied with a red ribbon. They introduced Andre from the ring as the new champion and that called for more kissing in the ring at the Garden than had ever been witnessed before. "Joe" Jacobs, the Frenchman's manager, planted a rebounding smack—a kiss, not a left hook—on Route's lips and then Route kissed Canzoneri. It seems that it is an old French custom, but how Jacobs got in on it still remains a mystery.

Route fought relentlessly boring in with a body attack which had the dancing Mr. Canzoneri wondering what it was all about. The Frenchman is what is known in the cauliflower racket as an "elbow guy." In other words, Andre croches and protects his coak with his elbows and then rams in until he gets close enough to uncork his trip hammer assault on the body—and how he trip hammers! The night he won the title he never hesitated from one tap of the gong until the next. He was finely conditioned for the bout and despite the fast pace he set for himself he was almost as fresh at the finish as he had been at the start. And that is a rarity in these days when four rounds usually finds the contestants so tired that they ought to be stretched out on cots and allowed to finish it in a debate.

Route is a tireless fighter and while he isn't a showy fighter, he is likely to hold the title for some time through his ability to pile up points on a heavy cannonading body attack which saps the strength of a rival just as it saps the pep of Canzoneri and made him give up his dancing.

The title now held by Route is the same title which was held by another Frenchman, Eugene Criqui, you may recall, won the tin hat from Johnny Kilbane back in the Summer of 1923 and then the hero of Verdun lost it to Johnny Dundee within two months of the time he won it.

Canzoneri and Route had met before—in November of 1926. A that time Tony was just graduating from the six-round ranks, and he won a questionable decision over the Frenchman in a 12-round melee. At that early date Canzoneri also took a severe body but baring from Route.

Jacobs got Route virtually as a gift, as the Frenchman was tossed into the deal for good measure when Joe purchased Jack Delaney from Pete Reilly. Jacobs thought Delaney would cover him with glory, but it was the extra measure for a good bargain that brought joy to the heart of the manager and moved a throne room of pugilism from the United States to France—for the time being.

2 INJURED BOYS AT ST. CLOUD ON WAY TO RECOVERY

ROBERT WHITE SUFFERED FRACTURED SKULL AND INTERNAL INJURIES

LOUIS KETLOW OF FREDRICK, S. D., ALSO SUFFERED FRACTURED SKULL

St. Cloud, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Bob White, 19, of Brainerd, who with another youth was seriously injured in an automobile crash near Sartell Sunday, today was reported in an improved condition at St. Cloud hospital.

White suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries when the heavy car in which he was riding with three friends was struck by another car and overturned. Hospital attendants said White would no doubt recover.

Louis Ketlow of Fredrick, S. D., also suffered a fractured skull and is likewise on the road to recovery. Robert Anderson, 18, and Ray Anderson, 19, the other two passengers, were released from the hospital on Monday. Both had minor injuries. The accident was said to have occurred when White's car slewed on the highway to avoid striking the light car and was rammed broadside. The driver of the second car fled from the scene.

Station KSTP to Broadcast N. B. C. Chain Programs

KSTP, the National Battery station, will become the exclusive northwest outlet for the world's greatest broadcasting chain, starting Wednesday, Dec. 5, it was announced by Lytton J. Shields, president of the National Battery Broadcasting company, owners and operators of KSTP.

The complete service of the National Broadcasting company, including all the nationally known radio features, will be broadcast through KSTP, under the new arrangement, making it the radio center of the entire northwest. National programs attracting millions of listeners to both the Red and Blue networks of the N. B. C. will be broadcast from KSTP.

The first of the chain programs brought to northwest listeners through KSTP is the famous Chicago Symphony orchestra Sunday at 6 p. m. The complete Red and Blue schedules will be announced this week.

BILL REGULATING BROADCASTING POWER IN USE

Washington, Dec. 4.—(UP)—A bill to prevent radio broadcasting stations from using more than 10,000 watts power was introduced today by Sen. Dill, democrat, Washington. The bill, if passed, would become an amendment to the present radio law.

Dill issued a statement charging the radio commission with failing to protect the public from high powered stations whose broadcasting dominated some fields for long distances. "Since the commission will not protect the public," he said, "congress is the only body that can do so."

Master of Instruments

Antonio Stradivari of Cremona, Italy, who brought the craft of violin making to its highest pitch of perfection (1679-1736) also made some beautiful violoncellos and violas.

Wasting Forest Wealth

From nature the people of the United States inherited a wealth of natural resources, says the Forestry Primer of the American tree association. Many of these we have spent recklessly, because of the very immensity of them. They seemed beyond the possibility of exhaustion. The forests are one of our natural resources that we have spent with a free hand.

PERMIT GIVEN FOR SCHOOL SEWER WORK

Council Allows Request to Construct Sewer on Pine Street

TO SERVE HIGH SCHOOL

Streets Designated for Hauling of Dirt From Excavation

The city council last evening gave permission to the Brainerd Board of Education to construct a sewer on Pine street, the same to be connected with sewer district No. 3.

The new sewer to be constructed by the sewer contractors will serve the new Brainerd high school when completed.

City Engineer R. T. Campbell reported that excavation contractors of the school had inquired as to where excavation dirt may be hauled. The council authorized permission to unload the dirt on Ninth, 11th and Pine streets, and any other streets the city engineer may designate.

"We can use all the excavation dirt we can secure for street roadwork," said Alderman Ernest Ritari, chairman of the street committee.

The contractors reported that 20,000 yards of excavation will be taken from the Brainerd high school site in digging the basement.

City Engineer Campbell reported that nine teams and three trucks were at present working in cleaning up the snow in downtown streets and suggested that the purchase of a snowplow which could be installed on a truck would be of great service in clearing snow off residential streets.

The matter of purchasing a snowplow was referred to the purchasing committee to report to the next meeting. The committee was further instructed to secure prices from truck owners as to plowing work.

On motion $50 was transferred from the general fund to the park fund. In a letter to the city council, Hugo Kaatz, of the Park Board, outlined a move to construct and maintain a skating rink at Lum Park with use of the pavilion for warming.

The council agreed to give assistance to the project.

The report of Miss Eula Michael, city and school nurse, for the month of October was accepted and ordered placed on file. The report showed a prevalence of measles, a total of 195 cases. Six cases of chickenpox and three cases of whooping cough were reported.

The narrative report of Miss Michael for the month of November follows:

"The measles epidemic is still raging especially in the Lincoln and Harrison schools. Since the infectious period is so long before the definite symptoms occur it is hard to check the spread of the disease. There have been several cases of pneumonia with the measles.

"Very few individual inspections were made this month due to the measles epidemic.

"The Minnesota Public Health association has given us another school room scales for the Garfield school. Every school is now supplied with a scale. We were also given a lovely set of posters which have been placed in various buildings.

"The Thanksgiving baskets were packed by a committee from all the Parent Teachers associations. About 55 baskets were distributed. The list of names was made out by the nurse.

"All the underweight children were reweighed by their teachers and the record placed on their report cards.

"One half day was spent in taking one of our teachers home. She will be unable to work for some time and was unable to go on the train.

"Miss Elonen, state mental tester, spent one and one half days giving individual tests to nine children. Four of these children had been placed in the special room temporarily and the other five will be placed on the waiting list.

"Miss Kenedy from the State Department for Reeducation of Cripples, spent one day in Brainerd. Two calls were made with Mrs. Kennedy.

"November 8 and 9 was spent at the State Conference in Minneapolis. One very helpful suggestion was made which we have carried out in regard to testing eyes. We have purchased a stand light with a 60 watt globe and extension cord to place in front of the eye chart while testing eyes. This will prove a great help in getting a correct test."

City Engineer Campbell presented assessment rolls covering the following improvements made and work done during 1928:

Construction of Lat. Sewer Sewer G-1, Dist. No. 9, along Terrace Ave. from Gen. Sewer W. a distance of 543.3 lineal feet.....$1,040.10

TWO BANDITS ROB STANDARD OIL CO.

Force Lewis E. Montgomery at Point of Gun to Hand Over Cash on Hand

STOLE APPROXIMATELY $54

Believed to Have Escaped in Waiting Car; Both Men Were Roughly Clad

Two unmasked bandits at 7:15 p. m. yesterday held up the Standard Oil Co. station, corner Broadway and Front streets, forced the attendant, Lewis E. Montgomery to hand over all currency and escaped with $53.80.

The two sauntered in to the oil station in pretense of warming themselves. The one, a short man wearing overalls and a mackinaw jacket pulled a gun ordering Mr. Montgomery to "stick 'em up and come across." The other, a tall slim man wearing overalls with a top coat ransacked the cash drawer of paper money. Mr. Montgomery was forced to hand over currency which he carried on his person to make change. The bandits did not take the change carried by Mr. Montgomery in the change belt, containing $14.81.

The bandits fled south on Broadway and are believed to have escaped in a waiting car.

Captain Charles Varner was notified of the robbery and immediately started a search aided by police officers and deputy sheriffs. Nearby towns were notified to maintain a close lookout for the bandits.

Special N. P. Officer Carl Jacobson conducted a search of all empty railway cars. He reported that earlier in the evening he had taken two men from an N. P. freight train who resembled the description given of the bandits.

The First Big Snowfall

(Contributed)

We had company until a late hour Sunday evening, and was unusually tired when retiring, but crawled out early Monday morning to fire up the furnace and get the house warm for the family.

I looked out the window and saw the snow piled high all about the house. I jumped back into bed until the house should warm up a bit, realizing that winter was really here, and wondering how long it would stay this time.

Then I went out and shoveled snow, for hours, it seemed. Why, I had never seen so much snow, and heavy too.

I shoveled snow from the front door to the street, then from the back door to the street and to the garage; then down the street on both sides of the house to connect with the paths of my neighbors, who evidently had been out earlier than I.

Ge, but I was warm and stiffened up from such strenuous work, so I gave a great big stretch, and just then the alarm went off, but it took some time for me to understand that I had been asleep and that I still had all that shoveling to do. In fact, it took so long for me to grasp the situation that I had to hurry off to work leaving my wife to clear the walks.

WHITE EAGLE HELPS WINTER MOTORISTS

"Feed our new Winter Balanced Gasoline to the motors in your community and watch their health improve," is the message from Earl Erickson, local distributor of the White Eagle Oil and Refining Company. And back of the message there is an interesting story of development.

The White Eagle Company is one of the few great enterprises financed by mid-western capital and directed by mid-western men. It was so organized and the name of an Indian chief, White Eagle, was selected as best exemplifying the western spirit.

With the characteristic pioneer instinct, the company has ventured into many new fields. As an example the White Eagle officials were eager to develop a good winter gasoline that could be bought at the same price as ordinary gasoline. A great deal of time and money was spent in studying this problem. Their Winter Balanced Gasoline was the result. First introduced in 1926, it has been improved every year since. During the past year more than a million dollars has been spent enlarging White Eagle refineries and improving the quality of their Winter Balanced Gasoline.

The extraordinary demand for this fine product is taxing the capacity of our three refineries—and more than justifies the faith of those men who spent a great deal of time and money in perfecting it.

REV. HAMILTON IS TO SPEAK

Austin Divine to Take Subject "Ancient and Modern Miracles"

AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Public Invited to Church to Hear Him Tomorrow Evening

Rev. A. G. Hamilton of Austin, will be the special speaker at a service to be held tomorrow evening at the First Baptist church. He comes to speak in behalf of Des Moines university and will take for his subject "Ancient and Modern Miracles." Rev. Hamilton is the pastor of the church which held the record for the largest Men's Bible class in the state, with an attendance of over 600 at one service.

"The outstanding miracle in educational circles today is Des Moines university. Formerly a denominational institution it went bankrupt under modernistic policies. A small group of fundamentalists within the Northern Baptist convention have taken it over, assumed its liabilities, and are putting it on a sound financial and scholastic standing. It is sometimes asserted that competent professors of scientific subjects cannot be secured who are loyal to the fundamentals of the Word of God, but this is being completely disproved in this institution under its new management. The full inspiration of the Scriptures, the complete credibility of the supernatural, and the teaching of special creation as opposed to atheistic evolution, mark the work of this university in all departments," Rev. Harold F. Damon the pastor of the First Baptist church asserts.

All are invited to attend this special meeting. A large attendance is desired.

PERMIT GIVEN FOR SCHOOL SEWER WORK

Council Allows Request to Construct
Sewer on Pine Street

TO SERVE HIGH SCHOOL

Streets Designated for Hauling of Dirt From Excavation

The city council last evening gave permission to the Brainerd Board of Education to construct a sewer on Pine street, the same to be connected with sewer district No. 3.

The new sewer to be constructed by the sewer contractors will serve the new Brainerd high school when completed.

City Engineer R. T. Campbell reported that excavation contractors of the school had inquired as to where excavation dirt may be hauled. The council authorized permission to unload the dirt on Ninth, 11th and Pine streets, and any other streets the city engineer may designate.

"We can use all the excavation dirt we can secure for street road-work," said Alderman Ernest Ritari, chairman of the street committee.

The contractors reported that 20,000 yards of excavation will be taken from the Brainerd high school site in digging the basement.

City Engineer Campbell reported that nine teams and three trucks were at present working in cleaning up the snow in downtown streets and suggested that the purchase of a snowplow which could be installed on a truck would be of great service in clearing snow off residential streets.

The matter of purchasing a snowplow was referred to the purchasing committee to report to the next meeting. The committee was further instructed to secure prices from truck owners as to plowing work.

On motion $50 was transferred from the general fund to the park fund. In a letter to the city council, Hugo Kaatz, of the Park Board, outlined a move to construct and maintain a skating rink at Lum Park with use of the pavilion for warming. The council agreed to give assistance to the project.

The report of Miss Eula Michael, city and school nurse, for the month of October was accepted and ordered placed on file. The report showed a prevalence of measles, a total of 195 cases. Six cases of chickenpox and three cases of whooping cough were reported.

The narrative report of Miss Michael for the month of November follows:

"The measles epidemic is still raging especially in the Lincoln and Harrison schools. Since the infectious period is so long before the definite symptoms occur it is hard to check the spread of the disease. There have been several cases of pneumonia with the measles.

"Very few individual inspections were made this month due to the measles epidemic.

"The Minnesota Public Health association has given us another school room scales for the Garfield school. Every school is now supplied with a scale. We were also given a lovely set of posters which have been placed in various buildings.

"The Thanksgiving baskets were packed by a committee from all the Parent Teachers associations. About 55 baskets were distributed. The list of names was made out by the nurse.

"All the underweight children were reweighed by their teachers and the record placed on their report cards.

"One half day was spent in taking one of our teachers home. She will be unable to work for some time and was unable to go on the train.

"Miss Elonen, state mental tester, spent one and one half days giving individual tests to nine children. Four of these children had been placed in the special room temporarily and the other five will be placed on the waiting list.

"Miss Kenedy from the State Department for Reeducation of Cripples, spent one day in Brainerd. Two calls were made with Mrs. Kennedy.

"November 8 and 9 was spent at the State Conference in Minneapolis. One very helpful suggestion was made which we have carried out in regard to testing eyes. We have purchased a stand light with a 60 watt globe and extension cord to place in front of the eye chart while testing eyes. This will prove a great help in getting a correct test."

City Engineer Campbell presented assessment rolls covering the following improvements made and work done during 1928:

TWO BANDITS ROB STANDARD OIL CO.

Force Lewis E. Montgomery at Point of Gun to Hand Over
Cash on Hand

STOLE APPROXIMATELY $54

Believed to Have Escaped in Waiting Car; Both Men Were Roughly Clad

Two unmasked bandits at 7:15 p. m. yesterday held up the Standard Oil Co. station, corner Broadway and Front streets, forced the attendant, Lewis E. Montgomery to hand over all currency and escaped with $53.80.

The two sauntered in to the oil station in pretense of warming themselves. The one, a short man wearing overalls and a mackinaw jacket pulled a gun ordering Mr. Montgomery to "stick 'em up and come across." The other, a tall slim man wearing overalls with a top coat ransacked the cash drawer of paper money. Mr. Montgomery was forced to hand over currency which he carried on his person to make change. The bandits did not take the change carried by Mr. Montgomery in the change belt, containing $14.81.

The bandits fled south on Broadway and are believed to have escaped in a waiting car.

Captain Charles Varner was notified of the robbery and immediately started a search aided by police officers and deputy sheriffs. Nearby towns were notified to maintain a close lookout for the bandits.

Special N. P. Officer Carl Jacobson conducted a search of all empty railway cars. He reported that earlier in the evening he had taken two men from an N. P. freight train who resembled the description given of the bandits.

The First Big Snowfall

(Contributed)

We had company until a late hour Sunday evening, and was unusually tired when retiring, but crawled out early Monday morning to fire up the furnace and get the house warm for the family.

I looked out the window and saw the snow piled high all about the house. I jumped back into bed until the house should warm up a bit, realizing that winter was really here, and wondering how long it would stay this time.

Then I went out and shoveled snow, for hours, it seemed. Why, I had never seen so much snow, and heavy too.

I shoveled snow from the front door to the street, then from the back door to the street and to the garage; then down the street on both sides of the house to connect with the paths of my neighbors, who evidently had been out earlier than I.

Ge, but I was warm and stiffened up from such strenuous work, so I gave a great big stretch, and just then the alarm went off, but it took some time for me to understand that I had been asleep and that I still had all that shoveling to do. In fact, it took so long for me to grasp the situation that I had to hurry off to work leaving my wife to clear the walks.

WHITE EAGLE HELPS WINTER MOTORISTS

"Feed our new Winter Balanced Gasoline to the motors in your community and watch their health improve," is the message from Earl Erickson, local distributor of the White Eagle Oil and Refining Company. And back of the message there is an interesting story of development.

The White Eagle Company is one of the few great enterprises financed by mid-western capital and directed by mid-western men. It was so organized and the name of an Indian chief, White Eagle, was selected as best exemplifying the western spirit.

With the characteristic pioneer instinct, the company has ventured into many new fields. As an example the White Eagle officials were eager to develop a good winter gasoline that could be bought at the same price as ordinary gasoline. A great deal of time and money was spent in studying this problem. Their Winter Balanced Gasoline was the result. First introduced in 1926, it has been improved every year since. During the past year more than a million dollars have been spent enlarging White Eagle refineries and improving the quality of their Winter Balanced Gasoline.

The extraordinary demand for this fine product is taxing the capacity of our three refineries—and more than justifies the faith of those men who spent a great deal of time and money in perfecting it.

AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Public Invited to Church to Hear
Him Tomorrow
Evening

Rev. A. G. Hamilton of Austin, will be the special speaker at a service to be held tomorrow evening at the First Baptist church. He comes to speak in behalf of Des Moines university and will take for his subject "Ancient and Modern Miracles." Rev. Hamilton is the pastor of the church which held the record for the largest Men's Bible class in the state, with an attendance of over 600 at one service.

"The outstanding miracle in educational circles today is Des Moines university. Formerly a denominational institution it went bankrupt under modernistic policies. A small group of fundamentalists within the Northern Baptist convention have taken it over, assumed its liabilities, and are putting it on a sound financial and scholastic standing. It is sometimes asserted that competent professors of scientific subjects cannot be secured who are loyal to the fundamentals of the Word of God, but this is being completely disproved in this institution under its new management. The full inspiration of the Scriptures, the complete credibility of the supernatural, and the teaching of special creation as opposed to atheistic evolution, mark the work of this university in all departments." Rev. Harold F. Damon the pastor of the First Baptist church asserts.

All are invited to attend this special meeting. A large attendance is desired.

Peaks of Desire

by Kane O'Day

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, star reporter on a large newspaper, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, daughter of a wealthy banker. He convinces her of the emptiness of the life she is leading, and takes her to live at his boarding house. There she is immediately attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky mechanic who aspires to the prize ring, and of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job as ticket seller in a local theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, and walks home with Steve Harrison. They are waylaid by Maizie Thompson, who accuses Steve of having trifled with her. Ann gets a job for Steve in Pagalos' service, and during Jerry's absence on an out-of-town assignment, she sees much of Steve. One night Pagalos asks Ann to stay after hours. He makes love to her, and she cries bring Steve, who is waiting outside. A fight ensues, and Steve makes the Greek realize his error. That night Steve confesses his love, and Ann realizes she is attracted to him. They embrace. The next day her employer tells Ann a blonde was looking for her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXI.

NO doubt existed in Ann's mind as to the identity of the blonde girl who had called at the theatre inquiring for her.

Maizie Thompson, Steve's ex-sweetheart.

Ann was afflicted with a sudden inner disgust. To be involved acrimoniously with a girl of Maizie Thompson's type took all of the keen edge off the adventurous thrill of any possible romance. Too, it was a matter of pride; there was a hint of spiritual nausea in the thought of competing with such a girl for a man. Steve had been Maizie's man. Her man, Ann wondered if that phrase included—everything.

Jerry Dunn, she was abruptly convinced, was finer than all three of them put together, superior to Ann herself and Steve and Maizie. He had infinitely more to offer her in the way of fine perceptions, a broader and deeper intellect. The great flaw in his appeal for her was that he sought constantly to understand and interpret life. Ann wanted to live it. If she welded herself to Jerry Dunn's personality they would be aloof from the vital struggle; they would be spectators, critics. No matter how much Jerry liked to talk about the struggle, he was not actually a part of it. The whole yearning of Ann was to be a living, breathing, hurting part of it all. If the fine strain in her nature were revolted by the coarseness she made contact with there was an almost compensating percentage in the new stimulation which had come into her erred life.

She examined her feelings towards Steve and found them kindly and—here was a mystery, slightly antagonistic. His consideration of the night before should have earned her gratitude, but perversely it irritated her. He had behaved too much as Jerry Dunn might have under similar conditions. He had not been quite true to himself, to his type. She wondered how soon she would see him again.

Jerry reached her on the telephone. His return to the city had been sooner than he expected. "I'll be through early at the office tonight," he said. "How about dropping around to the theatre and taking you home?"

A desire rose up in her which made her uncomfortable. A hope that Steve, rather than Jerry, might call for her. To feel that way was to experience a little pang of humiliation. She did not even know that Steve might call for her.

"Don't bother to come," she said. "I'll see you when we both get home."

"Whatever is convenient suits me. How've you been getting along the last few days?"

"Oh, fine." Then she added a lie. "I've missed seeing you."

She had not missed him at all. All of her thoughts, her time, her actions had been taken up by Nick Pagalos and Steve Harrison. Jerry wanted to be, at least, her confidant, and she knew she was going to tell him nothing of what had occurred. Tawdry secrets, but shot through with a lurking fascination which she could not quite understand.

That evening Ann ate dinner in a nearby restaurant where the tables had white enameled tops. Later she sold tickets, answered the telephone, talked several times with Nick Pagalos, and had the pleasant sensation of fitting smoothly into her job. By now she knew a number of the patrons by sight; she could smile at them and feel a warm response through the wicket. Humble people and a few of them gaudy—but all charged with human interest. It made her feel kindly toward them to think that they looked forward with pleasure to the mediocre offerings of the American Family Theatre. Childlike minds eager to be entertained, responsive to the flattery that they constituted themselves patrons of the theatrical art. New areas of understanding opened up in her breast; the roots and tendrils of her being were growing deeper into a nourishing soil.

When the second act was closed,

started me on the first step up the ladder," he said doggedly appreciative. "How did that Greek at the theatre treat you today?"

"He couldn't have behaved himself better."

"I think I made a believer out of him all right," Steve said with honest conviction. "We got the jump on him and I don't think he will cause you any more trouble, but if he does you let me know. I wouldn't let you stay there if I wasn't pretty sure he would behave himself from now on. You don't feel at all shaky about the job, do you?"

"I think I'm a hard, brassy creature to stick on when he's afraid to fire me," Ann said, "but it seems silly to be too sensitive. He gets full value out of me for my salary and there is no use being squeamish."

"That's right. No use being squeamish."

Steve suggested, as he always did, an ice-cream soda in the drug store or a sandwich and coffee at the restaurant.

"I don't think I'd better," she said. "I promised to meet Mr. Dunn as soon as I got home."

"That's a tough break for me," Ann wondered if it would get through his skin to know that Maizie Thompson had called at the theatre to see her. It would be interesting to observe his reaction.

"As she went up the stairs Ann thought for a moment she saw a girl slink into the shadows a half block away."

ing she slipped on her hat as usual and left the theatre with an odd expectancy about her heart. Steve Harrison was waiting for her at the first corner. As though by some established right he fell in beside her and as they crossed the street there was the fresh, harsh touch of his fingers under her elbow.

Whether by tact or lack of imagination he avoided the topic of the previous night.

"I saw that fellow today about going in the truck business. We made a deal."

It was a relief to speak of such external things, to shelter matters of feeling behind the barrier of silence.

"I think that's fine," she told him. "You'll be your own boss, at least."

"You made it come true—you

looking for me this morning but she said, 'Oh.'"

"I don't know what she wanted but I suspect it had something to do with you."

"I'll see that she lays off you."

"I'm afraid it may require more tact than you showed toward Pagalos. You can't punch a lady's face, can you?"

"I don't know what the doctor wants to butt in for," Steve muttered with a deep sneer. "She'll have to lay off."

No, he was not humiliated; he was merely angry.

They entered the home together. As she went up the stairs Ann thought for a moment she saw a girl slink into the shadows a half block away.

His Friends Are Now Taking Sargon. Too, Since Seeing His Wonderful Recovery, Says Mpls. Man

"Sargon made such a clean sweep of my troubles, and I think it would be cheap at $20 a bottle," said C. E. Pierce, 729 East Fourteenth St., Minneapolis.

"For the past eight years I had no end of trouble from stomach disorders. About ten o'clock every morning I would begin to suffer from severe heartburn and a miserable feeling in the pit of my stomach. It seemed like I had swallowed a red-hot coal of fire.

"I couldn't sleep at night on account of my kidneys, and I would get up mornings feeling more tired than I did on going to bed. After the day's work I would feel so played out that I never felt like going out."

"I tried all kinds of medicines and treatments, but nothing seemed to reach my troubles, and I had just about given up hope of ever being my old-time self again."

"When I got Sargon several of the men at the plant said, 'Well, Pierce, if that medicine helps you it is a wonder and we will get it too,' and that is exactly what happened, for three bottles of Sargon put me back in such fine health that a number of the fellows are now taking the medicine too."

"But, no one was more surprised than I was at the way Sargon just lifted me up on my feet. My digestion is perfect—just like a smooth-running machine, the kidney trouble is gone, I sleep all night long, and am so much stronger that I never seem to tire out."

Peaks of Desire

by Kane O'Day

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, star reporter on a large newspaper, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, daughter of a wealthy banker. He convinces her of the emptiness of the life she is leading, and takes her to live at his boarding house. There she is projected into a new world of people. She is immediately attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky mechanic who aspires to the prize ring, and of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job as ticket seller in a local theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, and walks home with Steve Harrison. They are waylaid by Maizie Thompson, who accuses Steve of having trifled with her. Ann gets a job for Steve in Pagalos' service, and during Jerry's absence on an out-of-town assignment, she sees much of Steve. One night Pagalos asks Ann to stay after hours. He makes love to her, and she cries bring Steve, who is waiting outside. A fight ensues, and Steve makes the Greek realize his error. That night Steve confesses his love, and Ann realizes she is attracted to him. They embrace. The next day her employer tells Ann a blonde was looking for her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXI.

NO doubt existed in Ann's mind as to the identity of the blonde girl who had called at the theatre inquiring for her.

Maizie Thompson, Steve's ex-sweetheart.

Ann was afflicted with a sudden inner disgust. To be involved acrimoniously with a girl of Maizie Thompson's type took all of the keen edge off the adventurous thrill of any possible romance. Too, it was a matter of pride; there was a hint of spiritual nausea in the thought of competing with such a girl for a man. Steve had been Maizie's man. Her man. Ann wondered if that phrase included everything.

Jerry Dunn, she was abruptly convinced, was finer than all three of them put together—superior to Ann herself and Steve and Maizie. He had infinitely more to offer her in the way of fine perceptions, a broader and deeper intellect. The great flaw in his appeal for her was that he sought constantly to understand and interpret life. Ann wanted to live it. If she welded herself to Jerry Dunn's personality they would be aloof from the vital struggle; they would be spectators, critics. No matter how much Jerry liked to talk about the struggle, he was not actually a part of it. The whole yearning of Ann was to be a living, breathing, hurting part of it all. If the fine strain in her nature were revolted by the coarseness she made contact with there was an almost compensating percentage in the new stimulation which had come into her errant life. She examined her feelings towards Steve and found them kindly and—here was a mystery, slightly antagonistic. His consideration of the night before should have earned her gratitude, but perversely it irritated her. He had behaved too much as Jerry Dunn might have under similar conditions. He had not been quite true to himself, to his type. She wondered how soon she would see him again.

Jerry reached her on the telephone. His return to the city had been sooner than he expected. "I'll be through early at the office tonight," he said. "How about dropping around to the theatre and taking you home?"

A desire rose up in her which made her uncomfortable. A hope that Steve, rather than Jerry, might call for her. To feel that way was to experience a little pang of humiliation. She did not even know that Steve might call for her.

"Don't bother to come," she said. "I'll see you when we both get home."

"Whatever is convenient suits me. How've you been getting along the last few days?"

"Oh, fine." Then she added a lie. "I've missed seeing you."

She had not missed him at all. All of her thoughts, her time, her actions had been taken up by Nick Pagalos and Steve Harrison. Jerry wanted to be, at least, her confidant, and she knew she was going to tell him nothing of what had occurred. Tawdry secrets, but shot through with a lurking fascination which she could not quite understand.

That evening Ann ate dinner in a nearby restaurant where the tables had been taken up by Nick Pagalos and Steve Harrison. Later she sold tickets, answered the telephone, talked several times with Nick Pagalos and had the pleasant sensation of fitting smoothly into her job. By now she knew a number of the patrons by sight; she could smile at them and feel a warm response through the wicket. Humble people and a few of them gaudy—but all charged with human interest. It made her feel kindly toward them to think that they looked forward with pleasure to the mediocre offerings of the American Family Theatre. Childlike minds eager to be entertained, responsive to the flattery that they constituted themselves patrons of the theatrical art. New areas of understanding opened up in her breast; the roots and tendrils of her being were growing deeper into a nourishing soil.

When the second act was closed

"As she went up the stairs Ann thought for a moment she saw a girl sink into the shadows a half block away."

ing she slipped on her hat as usual and left the theatre with an odd expectancy about her heart. Steve Harrison was waiting for her at the first corner. As though by some established right he fell in beside her and as they crossed the street there was the fresh, harsh touch of his fingers under her elbow.

Whether by tact or lack of imagination he avoided the topic of the previous night.

"I saw that fellow today about going in the truck business. We made a deal."

It was a relief to speak of such external things, to shelter matters of feeling behind the barrier of silence.

"I think that's fine," she told him. "You'll be your own boss, at least."

"You made it come true—you

started me on the first step up the ladder," he said doggedly appreciative. "How did that Greek at the theatre treat you today?"

"He couldn't have behaved himself better."

"I think I made a believer out of him all right," Steve said with honest conviction. "We got the jump on him and I don't think he will cause you any more trouble, but if he does you let me know. I wouldn't let you stay there if I wasn't pretty sure he would behave himself from now on. You don't feel at all shaky about the job, do you?"

"I think I'm a hard, brassy creature to stick on when you're afraid to fire me," Ann said, but it seems silly to let you stay there if I wasn't pretty sure he would behave himself from now on. You don't feel at all shaky about the job, do you?"

"That's right. No use being squeamish."

Steve suggested, as he always did, an ice-cream soda in the drug store or a sandwich and coffee at the restaurant.

"I don't think I'd better," she said. "I promised to see Mr. Dunn as soon as I got home."

"That's a tough break for me," Ann wondered if it would get through his skin to know that Maizie Thompson had called at the theatre to see her. It would be interesting to observe his reaction.

WORTH $20 BOTTLE, STATES C. E. PIERCE

His Friends Are Now Taking Sargon, Too, Since Seeing His Wonderful Recovery, Says Mpls. Man

"Sargon made such a clean-sweep of my troubles, and I think it would be cheap at $20 a bottle," said C. E. Pierce, 729 East Fourteenth St., Minneapolis.

"For the past eight years I had no end of trouble from stomach disorders. About ten o'clock every morning I would begin to suffer from severe heartburn and a miserable feeling in the pit of my stomach. It seemed like I had swallowed a red-hot coal of fire.

"I couldn't sleep at night on account of my kidneys, and I would get up mornings feeling more tired than I did on going to bed. After the day's work I would feel so played out that I never felt like going out."

"I tried all kinds of medicines and treatments, but nothing seemed to reach my troubles, and I had just about given up hope of ever being my old-time self again."

"When I got Sargon several of the men at the plant said, 'Well, Pierce, if that medicine helps you it is a wonder and we will get it too,' and that is exactly what happened, for three bottles of Sargon put me back in such fine health that a number of the fellows are now taking the medicine too."

"But, no one was more surprised than I was at the way Sargon just lifted me up on my feet. My digestion is perfect—just like a smooth-running machine, the kidney trouble is gone, I sleep all night long, and am so much stronger that I never seem to tire out."

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd from Henry P. Dunn; and in Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen. Adv
